

Alina Salganicoff, Ph.D.

Senior Vice President and Director, Women's Health Policy, KFF; Cochair, Committee on the Assessment of NIH Research on Women's Health, National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine (NASEM)

Alina Salganicoff, Ph.D., is a Senior Vice President and the Director of Women's Health Policy at KFF where her work focuses on health policies of importance to women throughout their lifespan, with an emphasis on coverage and access challenges facing women who are underserved and marginalized. Dr. Salganicoff has written and lectured extensively on the financing of and access to health services for women, with topics ranging from sexual and reproductive health to long-term care. She has served on numerous federal, state, and nonprofit advisory committees. She is also on the advisory panel of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists' Women's Preventive Services Initiative, on Power to Decide's Public Policy Advisory Group, and an Associate Editor of the peer-reviewed journal, Women's Health Issues. Born in Argentina, Dr. Salganicoff is a native Spanish speaker. She holds a B.S. from Pennsylvania State University and a Ph.D. in health policy from Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. Dr. Salganicoff is a member of NASEM's Standing Committee on Reproductive Health, Equity, and Society. She served on the Institute of Medicine's committee that issued recommendations for women's preventive services that are now covered under the Affordable Care Act, and she served on NASEM's committees for abortion safety and quality, control and prevention of sexually transmitted infections, and women's health research.